CNN's Don Lemon Tells Bill Cosby Accuser "There Are Ways Not To Perform Oral Sex" (See Video)

On Tuesday's CNN Tonight, anchor Don Lemon interviewed Joan Tarshis, who on Monday alleged that Bill Cosby raped her twice in 1969.

CNN's Don Lemon is no stranger to tense and uncomfortable interviews, but a conversation with Bill Cosby's latest rape accuser Tuesday night took a particularly shocking turn for the worse.

Speaking with Joan Tarshis, a woman who recently accused Bill Cosby of sexually assaulting her 45 years ago, the CNN host asked his guest why she didn't use her teeth as "a weapon" while being forced to perform oral sex on the comedian.

Lemon at first apologized for sounding "crude," and then pressed further: "You know, there are ways not to perform oral sex if you didn't want to do it," he said.

"Biting," he later said more directly.

"I didn't even think of it," Tarshis replied.

Read the full exchange:

Lemon: Can I ask you this, because -- and please, I don't mean to be crude, ok?

Tarshis: Yeah.

Lemon: Because I know some of you -- and you said this last night, that he -- yo... [more]

Peggy O’Shea, Head Writer for ‘One Life to Live,’ Dies at 91

Peggy (Margaret Mary) O’Shea, former head writer for daytime soaps “Capitol” and “One Life to Live” and for a time a writer on “Peyton Place,” died May 1 in Los Angeles of a stroke and its complications. She was 91.

O’Shea was head writer on ABC’s “One Life to Live” for much of the 1980s, sometimes in conjunction with Sam Hall. She was head writer on CBS’ “Capitol” during roughly the same period.

She worked on a range of other shows with her husband, TV writer Lou Shaw, penning episodes of “Dr. Kildare,” “Ben Casey” and “Have Gun Will Travel,” among others.

Netflix Shelves Bill Cosby's Upcoming Special After New Rape Allegation

Netflix has postponed the online premiere of Bill Cosby's new special after another woman came forward accusing the comedy legend of rape on Tuesday.

The streaming service released a statement late Tuesday saying it was delaying the release of Cosby's latest stand-up special, which was scheduled to go online Nov. 27, Newsday reported.

Newsday noted the move was "absolutely expected" after Cosby canceled an upcoming appearance on "The Late Show with David Letterman," slated for Wednesday night.

The latest allegation against Cosby came from TV presenter Janice Dickinson, who said in an exclusive interview with Entertainment Tonight on Tuesday that she had been drugged and raped by the comedian shortly after she emerged from a rehab center in 1982.

Two other allegations had been made against Cosby recently. In an op-ed published by the Washington Post earlier this month, Barbara Bowman accused the comedian of raping her in 1985. On Monday, Joan Tarshis alleged that Cosby sexually assaulted her twice in 1... [more]

'Grape Salad' Is Not Minnesotan, And Other Lessons In Cultural Mapmaking

I was not raised in Minnesota, but I earned my stripes there during 10 winters as a resident, scraping my windshield through a fog of existential despair. Not every portrayal of the Midwest is based in reality, but this still speaks to a profound piece of my soul. I have been this person. I have been Jerry Lundegaard before murder enters his life, but after it enters his heart, if by "murder" you mean "beating the bejeezus out of a car with a plastic scraper."

I have never in my life heard of a "grape salad." Not at Thanksgiving, not at Christmas, not during a Vikings game, not during the Winter Carnival, not during the State Fair, and not during the greatest state holiday: the annual hockey tournament of the Minnesota State High School League.

But today, when The New York Times decided to come up with Thanksgiving recipes that "evoke each of the 50 states," Minnesota got "Grape Salad."

Other recipes: Garam Masala Pumpkin Tart (D.C.). Hasselback Potatoes with Garlic-Paprika Oil (Idaho). Slow-Cooked Red ... [more]

Pioneering trans author Leslie Feinberg has died

... and the obituary (written by her surviving partner!) immediately devolves into trans-screaming about pronouns.

> Why didn't YOU make it your business to use hir preferred > pronouns for Leslie when zie was alive? If a public figure TELLS you that they prefer feminine or non-binary pronouns, you don't ignore hir wishes and call hir "he." That shows gross disrespect on your part. So you straight-up admit that you deliberately misgendered Leslie Feinberg for the bulk of the three-plus decades of hir public career. Good work, Advocate.

Of course, this ignores the partner's own obituary, which used "she."

And then there's this:

> She succumbed to complications from multiple tick-borne co-infections, including Lyme disease, babeisiosis, and protomyxzoa rheumatica, after decades of illness....She attributed her catastrophic health crisis to “bigotry, prejudice and lack of science”—active prejudice toward her transgender identity that made access to health care exceedingly difficult, and lack of s... Q.

What have you been reading?

A.

WILLOW: Quantum physics. Osho.

JADEN: “The Ancient Secret of the Flower of Life” and ancient texts; things that can’t be pre-dated.

I’m curious about your experience of time. Do you feel like life is moving really quickly? Is your music one way to sort of turn it over and reflect on it?

WILLOW: I mean, time for me, I can make it go slow or fast, however I please, and that’s how I know it doesn’t exist.

JADEN: It’s proven that how time moves for you depends on where you are in the universe. It’s relative to beings and other places. But on the level of being here on earth, if you are aware in a moment, one second can last a year. And if you are unaware, your whole childhood, your whole life can pass by in six seconds. But it’s also such a thing that you can get lost in.

Turkey war at my house....

So, my BF and I are hosting Thanksgiving. Don't worry, everybody's invited from soup to nuts for soup to nuts. It isn't that question I ask. It's this:

What kind of turkey is right to serve?

I am the cook. He isn't. We've got 17 people coming. I don't want to stuff and roast a 24 pound turkey. I am not even sure I know how. I want to serve a couple of rolled breasts from the grocery store, with stuffing cooked on the side. I could do that stuffing the night before and microwave it.

He is going ballistic... says turkey has to be roasted on the bird and the bird has to be stuffed. At first I thought he was kidding, then whining. Now I realize he's serious. Isn't my way acceptable?

Jake Gyllenhaal, who stars in the recently release thriller “Nightcrawler,” has sold his gated compound in Hollywood Hills for $3,262,500.

The single-story home, which was built in 1948, sits on nearly two acres with expanses of lawn, mature trees, a swimming pool and a detached office. There are canyon, mountain and cityscape views.

The 2,826 square feet of living space, crowned by vaulted beamed ceilings, include a central hall, a den, a family room, three bedrooms and three bathrooms.

Missouri Gov. Nixon declares state of emergency ahead of expected grand jury decision in Michael Brown case

Mon November 17, 2014

(CNN) -- Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon declared a state of emergency Monday ahead of an expected grand jury decision in the case of Michael Brown.

In his executive order, Nixon cited the "possibility of expanded unrest."

He said that people have the right to protest peacefully but that citizens and businesses must be protected from violence and damage.

St. Louis Mayor Francis Slay said the plan will bring National Guard troops to the city, but he said their role is designed to be secondary to local law enforcement.

Brown, a black teen, was fatally shot by Darren Wilson, a white police officer, on August 9. The grand jury is weighing whether to indict Wilson.

"In the days immediately following Michael Brown's death, peaceful protests were marred by senseless acts of violence and destruction," the governor said last week.

"That ugliness was not representative of Missouri, and it cannot be repeated," said Nixon.

The state of emergency will expire in 30 days unless extended by ano... [more]

There's a 41 year old man

He dropped out of high school in 1989 and got his first job. Quit it after 18 months for another job and was fired after three days.

He was not able to find another job and after a couple of years his depression became much worse, resulting in agoraphobia and social anxiety.

For 10 years he struggled with this, while receiving no support from his family or doctor, who didn't believe in mental illness and refused to refer him to a psychiatrist.

After 10 years he managed to overcome his mental illness, but not end them completely.

However he still hasn't been able to find a job. He has no friends, has never dated and the only people in his life are his parents.

Although he lives with and takes care of his parents and they in turn support him, he's desperate to get his life in order and have his own income because when his parents are dead he will have no way of supporting himself.

After 10 years of trying everything he can, he's at his wits end. What should he do to improve his situation?

Perhaps I have a narcissistic personality, but I think part of the appeal of sexual activity is having your own hot body and being able to use it in sexual situations.

My body isn't where I want it to be. I'm a 6'4.5" male, I weigh 214 pounds, and my body fat percentage is 20%.

I'm not interested in sleeping with anybody when my body is in this shape.

And if I'm only attracted to people who are in shape, I certainly have to work on my body. If I want somebody with a good body, I have to be able to give them a good body.

Do you believe a virgin can be asexual?

I used to think so because I assumed that a virgin just wouldn't know what they're missing until they do it. But someone brought up a good point that it doesn't take sex for people to know their sexual orientation--i.e. plenty of people have known whether they're gay or straight prior to losing their virginity. I'm sure none of us had to have sex with a man to know we are attracted to them. Similarly, he argued that it wouldn't take sexual experience to know that you're not attracted to anyone since asexuality is an orientation (as opposed to a behavior or choice).

Thoughts?

Why do women want to get married and have babies?

I was in the check out line when I heard two of the cashiers talking to each other.

Both said they 30 something, and were gonna start online dating, because they wanted to get married and have kids.

Sad to say, but they just seemed so desperate.

Hope they don't hook up with a Ted Bundy.

Some of Canada's Lakes Are Turning Into Jelly Thanks to Acid Rain

It's a real bummer to hear that 150 years of industrialization wrecked the Earth so bad that it'll take thousands to recover. It's a much bigger bummer to see the situation in real life. That's exactly what's happening in a large number of Canada's lakes, which are turning into jelly thanks to acid rain.

A new study from Cambridge University scientists shows how acid rain is leading to exploding populations of a particular type of gelatinous plankton that threatens to clog up the country's drinking water filtration systems. Basically, the acid rain zapped the calcium deposits in the soil around a large number of Canada's lakes. Falling calcium levels, in turn, led to the swift decline of certain calcium-rich plankton like Daphnia water fleas, and that meant that their gelatinous, less calcium-dependent competitors in the Holopedium genus can thrived. Now, many of Canada's lakes look like bowls full of jelly (see pic at the link).

What's the problem with exploding populations of Canadian, jelly-clad plankt... [more]

AL SHARPTON! AL SHARPTON! Al Sharpton owes more than $4.5 million in taxes!

NY TIMES:

Obscured in his ascent, however, has been his troubling financial past, which continues to shadow his present. Mr. Sharpton has regularly sidestepped the sorts of obligations most people see as inevitable, like taxes, rent and other bills. Records reviewed by The New York Times show more than $4.5 million in current state and federal tax liens against him and his for-profit businesses. And though he said in recent interviews that he was paying both down, his balance with the state, at least, has actually grown in recent years. His National Action Network appears to have been sustained for years by not paying federal payroll taxes on its employees. With the tax liability outstanding, Mr. Sharpton traveled first class and collected a sizable salary, the kind of practice by nonprofit groups that the United States Treasury's inspector general for tax administration recently characterized as “abusive,” or “potentially criminal” if the failure to turn over or collect taxes is willful. Mr. Sharpton and t... [more]

The formerly out and now seemingly out again gay British actor Luke Evans, part cinq

Let's carry on our foolishness in a single thread.

To recap: When Welsh actor Luke Evans started out on the West End in Boy George's musical Taboo, he was openly gay, telling The Advocate "I'm going to have to be open. It's who I am. And if people don't like it, then I don't want their jobs." and "If that means I'm going to be a poor man at 60, then at least I've lived a happy, open, gay life and not had to hide it from anybody." More bluntly, he told an English gay rag that what he liked most about gay porn stars were "big cocks."

Despite appearing in high profile musicals such as Les Miserables and Avenue Q, major stardom eluded him, so he took the plunge into film. Reneging on his earlier statements, he tried to present himself as straight, even attempting to beard with his friend Holly Goodchild. But the internet remembers and this created a furor in on many gay blogs and here at DL, where his earlier interviews were dug up. At the time, however, the mainstream press ignored it.

Harry Styles On Bisexuality: 'I'm Pretty Sure I'm Not'

Harry Styles isn’t bisexual. Or, at least, he doesn’t think he’s bisexual.

The 19-year-old appears on the cover of the September 2013 issue of British GQ, one of five covers featuring the boys of pop group One Direction. When speaking with the magazine, Styles was asked about claims he is bisexual. Questions about the teen singer’s relationship with Radio 1 DJ Nick Grimshaw have been circulating the rumor mill for months.

Styles insisted to GQ that he and Grimshaw aren’t dating and are just friends.

"Bisexual? Me? I don’t think so," Stiles said. “I’m pretty sure I’m not."

The rumors do sometimes bother the British crooner, who used to date country sweetheart Taylor Swift and has most recently been linked to model Kara Rose Marshall.

"Some of them are funny," he told GQ of the rumors. “Some of them are ridiculous. Some of them are annoying. I don’t want to be one of those people that complains about the rumours. I never like it when a celebrity goes on Twitter and says, ‘This isn’t true!’ It is what ... [more]

‘X-Men: Apocalypse': Who's Being Eyed to Play Young Jean Grey, Cyclops?

Chloe Moretz, Elle Fanning and Oscar-nominated actress Hailee Steinfeld are among the teenage leading ladies being eyed to play young Jean Grey in Bryan Singer‘s “X-Men: Apocalypse,” while Ben Hardy, Charlie Rowe and Timothee Chalamet are under consideration for the role of young Cyclops, multiple individuals familiar with the 20th Century Fox project have told TheWrap.

20th Century Fox had no comment on the respective shortlists.

While a representative for Moretz didn't respond to multiple requests for comment, an insider confirms that she and Fanning were among the girls who met with Singer in recent weeks as he commenced his search for young Jean Grey, who is expected to recur in future “X-Men” movies.

Sources caution that official test offers for the role of Jean Grey have not been made yet and not only are other up-and-comers still in the mix, but it's unclear whether Fanning is even pursuing the high-profile role at this time.

What's clear at this point is that Singer is aiming high for the role... [more]

Why Does One Direction's Management Always Try & Downplay Zayn Malik?

I never understood why One Direction's management never makes Zayn Malik the lead singer. I mean he clearly has the best voice out of the group, he's a little skinny but still attractive. And he's the only one of the group that can hit those high falsetto note's effortlessly.

But in their new video "Steal My Girl" (below) when Zayn's singing part comes on towards the end, they switch camera's to him and Harry Styles when it's clearly Zayn's voice throughout doing that high note NOT Harry. Is it because Zayn is a muslim that 1D's management downplay his role in the group? I'm just curious. What do you think DL?

Janice Dickinson Claims She Was Raped by Bill Cosby (Video)

Janice Dickinson has made some shocking claims against Bill Cosby and says that the comedian drugged her and sexually assaulted her back in 1982.

The 59-year-old model and reality star says that she was summoned to Lake Tahoe by Bill to talk about her professional future and she remembers being given a pill and some red wine in her hotel room before blacking out and being raped.

“The next morning I woke up, and I wasn’t wearing my pajamas, and I remember before I passed out that I had been sexually assaulted by this man,” Janice said in an interview with Entertainment Tonight. “Before I woke up in the morning, the last thing I remember was Bill Cosby in a patchwork robe, dropping his robe and getting on top of me.”

“I’m doing this because it’s the right thing to do, and it happened to me, and this is the true story,” she added.

Janice‘s allegations come just days after Mr. Cosby was accused of rape by several women.

The Official Last Movie You Watched Thread

Good. Bad. New. Old. Doesn't matter. Tell us what it was & share your thoughts about it if you can.

I just watched an excellent old "B" Movie called 'Diary Of A Bachelor' this morning. Starring someone named Joe Silver. It was one of those early-60's "Swingin' Sex Comedies", but the writing & direction were more clever than most films of it's ilk. Didn't expect it to be as good as it was. The location filming was great too. I got a real feel of what early-60's NYC must have been like.

Immediately before that I watched Bette Davis in Dead Ringer from 1964. One of 2 films in which she played twins. I found it much more enjoyable than the first, 'A Stolen Life'.

> Directed by Sandy Howard. With Joe Silver, Dagne Crane, Denise Lor, Jan Crockett. A wealthy young woman about to marry a noted playboy comes across his diary, and as she reads it, she begins to discover that her intended husband isn't quite what he seems to be.

Pope Francis declares union between man and woman 'at root of marriage' in blow to gay rights

Pope Francis has apparently spoken out in defence of marriage as an institution between a man and a woman, hurting the hopes of those who see him as a liberal driving force in the Catholic Church.

Last month the Pope warned Catholics not to fear change following an angry synod backlash against a softening of the Church's stance towards homosexuality.

But in his address at the opening of a three-day conference on traditional marriage hosted at the Vatican yesterday, Francis called family "an anthropological fact… that cannot be qualified based on ideological notions or concepts important only at one time in history".

The Humanum conference invites people of different religions to come together and celebrate "complementarity between man and woman in marriage" – the idea that men and women have different but complementary roles that they say are essential to building a strong family.

And though he did not refer to gay unions directly, the Pope said: "It is fitting that you have gathered here to explore t... [more]

★ ABC's 20/20 Reports "In Crisis Situations, Black Men Are Eight Times More Likely To Make Heroic Acts Than White Men"

"Hispanic Men are two times more likely to make heroic acts than white men."

"City dwellers are more likely to make heroic acts than rural citizens."

On Friday's 20/20, which detailed the Aurora movie theater mass shooting, they profiled two African American men who chose to save others in danger. One of the young black men helped escort a mother and her two children to safety as he got shot in the leg. Another young black man helped shield two people, one who was shot in the head, behind a door as the shooter approached them.

The show interviewed a white sociologist those profiles. He reported on his study which explored which types of people were more inclined to save others in crisis situations.

Of course, this doesn't negate the heroism shown by white men. These are compelling statistics that run counter to much of what the media tends to tell us about Black and Hispanic men.

Should we be insulted?

My partner's sister called today to invite us for Thanksgiving, which is 10 days away. She will be hosting her husband and children, a few friends and my partner's very recently widowed father and a single sister who are flying in from out of town.

We were not invited for dinner but just for dessert.

We have no other family within a four State radius and live 30 minutes from my sister in law.

Anonymous Unmasks Racist KKK Creeps Threatening Lethal Force Against Ferguson Protesters

Recently, the Ku Klux Klan promised to use “lethal force” against people protesting the murder of unarmed African-American teen Michael Brown. “You have awakened a sleeping giant,” a Klan flyer reads. “The good people of St. Louis County of all races, colors and creeds will not tolerate your threats of violence against our police officers, their families and our communities.” The KKK promises “consequences” and the use of “lethal force” against African-American protesters.

Naturally, this did not please the hacktivist group Anonymous, who took it upon themselves to take the hoods off the Klansmen making threats, and take down KKK web sites.

Good for the hackers, expose the troublemaking bigots.

Russian Supermodel's Suicide Due To Cult

When 20 year old Russian supermodel Ruslana Korshunova killed herself in 2008 by jumping off of a building in Manhattan, few could understand what would bring a beautiful, young woman who had everything to the point where she wanted to end her life. Now an author has uncovered what he believes is the answer. Korshunova joined a cult called "Rose of the World".

Revealed: The desperate last days of Russian supermodel, 20, who took running leap from her New York apartment building 'after joining brutal Rose of the World cult'

Ruslana Korshunova was 20 when she plummeted from a building next door to her apartment in Manhattan's financial district in 2008, after joining the cult, where adherents are yelled at.

Sophia Loren 80 today

Gal still looks amazing at 80. Have a great day Sophia.

I love those early 50s Italian films of hers, before Hollywood came calling. She is terrific in SCANDAL IN SORRENTO, WOMAN OF THE RIVER, TWO NIGHTS WITH CLEOPATRA, GOLD OF NAPLES, LUCKY TO BE A WOMAN, TOO BAD SHES BAD etc. She was in about 8 movies in 1954, her breakout year, 60 years ago, since she began as a teenage extra somewhere in QUO VADIS in 1951.

I like those early American ones of hers: BOY ON A DOLPHIN, LEGEND OF THE LOST, HOUSEBOAT, IT STARTED IN NAPLES (where Gable must have been about 30 years older than her), she has a delicious sense of comedy too, as per her record album with Peter Sellers in 1960 (he, like Cary Grant, was besotted with her). She is terrific in EL CID and FALL OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE and even makes THE CASSANDRA CROSSING bearable. Shame her films with Brando and Newman, Burton and O'Toole were not better, but her ones with Marcello Mastroianni are endlessly enjoyable.

It was good to see her back at Cannes and at othe... [more]

Bread Goes Stale About Six Times Faster in the Refrigerator than at Room Temperature

I know a few other vegetarians who also don't like mushrooms. I'm curious -- are there other veggies out there who do or don't like mushrooms? Is there a correlation? Natalie Morales, Willie Geist Fired From the Today Show in Massive Shake-Up

You might soon be waking up with new faces if you're a Today show devotee. In a quest to beat rival Good Morning America's ratings, NBC is shaking things up at the morning show.

Co-hosts Willie Geist and Natalie Morales "were recently told they were fired," an NBC source reveals exclusively in the new issue of Us Weekly. Morales, 42, is now in talks with ABC and Geist, 39, has lined up a gig at CBS, the insider tells Us.

But soon after those radical cuts were made, NBC removed general manager Jamie Horowitz, the most vocal proponent of the changes. In a memo obtained by Us Weekly, NBC News' Deborah Turness explained Horowitz — on the job since September — was simply "not the right fit.” Now it’s unclear whether Geist and Morales will indeed be exiting or whether the current regime will try to woo them back.

Just when it looked like George Clooney, was poised to have it all, he reportedly loses his best Hollywood buddy, Brad Pitt, because the hunk's jealous wife, Angelina Jolie, can't deal with how insecure London lawyer, Amal Alamuddin-Clooney, makes her feel. According to the latest gossip news updates, not only did Angie force her Ocean's Eleven hubby to boycott two separate Batman weddings, now the Goodwill sex-symbol is starting static at the UN. Word has it that Angelina Jolie is going out of her way to snub George Clooney's new wife, Amal Alamuddin, despite their sharing similar interests and circles of friends.

Homophobic Christian frau cunt takes a Slurpee to the face

(See video at link)

An anti-gay protester who decided to use Mother's Day to spread a message of hate got a slushie thrown at her by a disgruntled passerby.

Christine Weick, an author from Michigan, stood at a busy intersection in Grandville, Michigan, on Sunday, May 11, holding a sign that read: “Thank your mom today for not being gay.” NBC affiliate WOOD got a tip about the demonstration and sent a cameraperson to the scene. While the cameras were rolling, a woman named Jessica Prince approached Weick and threw a slushie at her. Weick threatened to pepper-spray Prince, who gave her the finger.

“Truth is hate to those that hate the truth, and this is the truth,” Weick told WOOD. “They don’t like it and they label me a hater, and it isn’t that at all. I love them enough to tell them they are on the wrong path.”

Although Prince's slushie gesture made headlines, others protested Weick's protest with signs of their own, with messages like "Thank your mom if you're not a BIGOT! Judge not" and "Fk her."<... [more]

MAYOR REFUSES TO REMOVE PORK FROM SCHOOL CANTEEN- MENU... EXPLAINS WHY

Let's hear it for a Quebec mayor...

It is a very good answer but I doubt that anyone can or would send an answer such as that stated below:

MAYOR REFUSES TO REMOVE PORK FROM SCHOOL CANTEEN-MENU... EXPLAINS WHY

Muslim parents demanded the abolition of pork in all the school canteens of a Montreal suburb. The mayor of the Montreal suburb of Dorval,has refused, and the town clerk sent a note to all parents to explain why...

“Muslims must understand that they have to adapt to Canada and Quebec, its customs, its traditions, its way of life, because that's where they chose to immigrate. “They must understand that they have to integrate and learn to live in Quebec. “They must understand that it is for them to change their lifestyle, not the Canadians who so generously welcomed them. “They must understand that Canadians are neither racist nor xenophobic, they accepted many immigrants before Muslims (whereas the reverse is not true, in that Muslim states do not accept non-Muslim immigrants).... Why does Whoopi Goldberg react so badly towards women who get forcefully penetrated, i.e. raped?

I keep seeing her excesses and excuses, but she hasn't provided any evidence for her blunt and evasive dismissals of women who got harmed not just more than once, completely avoiding anything having to do with evidence against the alleged abusers.

I can't help but wonder if Whoopi was horribly and malignantly raped while she was younger and resents any women who may have recovered getting good treatment as she recovered and demanded some kind of a better outcome the result of penetrative sexual abuse. And her celebrity status.

Whoopi Goldberg's hatred and continued abuse of rape victims needs to be documented

Loretta Young vs NBC

Was this the most ridiculous celebrity lawsuit of all times? In 1972 Loretta Young sued NBC because they showed old episodes of her TV show "Letter to Loretta". She claimed that these reruns showed her in outdated gowns and hairstyles which might lead to audiences making fun of her.

She actually won the case and was given little more than half a million dollars (she originally wanted 2 million $).

For someone so pious she sure was one nasty bitch! She should be happy that someone even bothered to watch her old schmaltzy TV show in the 1970's. And wasn't one of her sons a child molester but she took care that the charges against him were dropped?

Holy moly. Every couple of weeks I get my haircut (my barber cuts Anderson's hair, BTW). I tend to go at lunchtime. And it never fails that they turn on the TV to The Chew.

Within about 30 seconds, I'm grinding my teeth. It's like Chinese water torture...these ninnies screaming everything and the audience hooting and hollering.

They basically cook and yak the whole hour. Like they'll open the show and someone will be making hamburgers and another host will quiz them about it. They'll say, "Ah, but I have a secret." Audiences goes "Ooooohhhhhhh." "Guess what I put in my burgers? [pregnant pause] Mayonnaise!" Audience erupts in applause.

And on and on and on it goes.

It's almost like someone at ABC on a goof said, well, gee, if we want to replicate the success of The View -- now I know we can't just do a show with chicks sitting around a table talking -- so we do The Chew. Yes, and instead of sitting they'll be cooking and talking.

The OFFICIAL Philadelphia Gay Bashing Thread

Not that it should surprise anyone here, but problems are now being experienced in the old "Meet Philadelphia Gay Basher Kathryn Knott - New Thread" thread which, itself, was the last in a long line of disappearing threads on the topic of the Sept 11th group assault of two gay men in Philadelphia.

These threads will continue to experience issues and eventually be shut down as more and more freepers, conservative trolls and their various ilk try and have them shut down.

But this has always been a story that was born out of people on the Internet who weren't afraid to tell the truth about the injustices that were happening around them.

So, we're going to keep discussing this case. And we'll also keep talking after this thread has been infected. This is the new thread to discuss all developments, discussion of the case, the many evil faces of Kathryn Knott, etc.

‘Hot in Cleveland’ to End After Sixth Season

November 17, 2014 | 02:01PM PT

Cynthia Littleton, Managing Editor: Television

TV Land will call it a wrap for comedy “Hot in Cleveland” after its upcoming sixth season.

The ensembler about a group of Hollywood-ites who relocate to Cleveland paved the way for TV Land’s original series strategy, turning the cabler into a bigger player in the biz after years as a showcase for vintage TV.

“Cleveland” was a success from the get-go in 2010, thanks in no small part to savvy casting of sitcom vets Betty White, Valerie Bertinelli, Jane Leeves and Wendie Malick. Series was created by “Frasier” alum Suzanne Martin and produced by Sean Hayes and Todd Milliner’s Hazy Mills banner.

“It’s been an honor to work with Valerie Bertinelli, Jane Leeves, Wendie Malick and the incomparable Betty White as well as our executive producers Suzanne Martin, Todd Milliner, Sean Hayes and the rest of our exceptional writers, production team and crew,” said TV Land prexy Larry Jones.... "Getting On" on HBO

Starring Miss Swann (Alex Borstein)...

Set in a geriatric extended care wing of a down-at-the-heels hospital, Getting On follows put-upon nurses, anxious doctors and administrators as they struggle with the darkly comic, brutally honest and quietly compassionate realities of caring for the elderly.

Anyone watch? Thoughts?

It's yet another American version of a BBC show.

Why couldn't BETTE DAVIS follow up All About Eve with any success?

I'm watching her in The Star now on TCM. Was this really the best material she was offered?

First of all, she looks like she aged 15 years in the two years that passed since she played Margo Channing.

Secondly, The Star stinks! Everything about it looks and sounds like a bad episode of Alfred Hitchcock Presents, including Natalie Wood's amateurish performance as Bette's teenage daughter.

Sterling Hayden hasn't appeared yet. I hope he picks things up!

NYTimes: "Stop Telling Women to Smile!"

ATLANTA — With a lick of wheat paste, a roller and a stepladder, Tatyana

Fazlalizadeh, a painter and illustrator from Brooklyn, introduced herself to the South, in an unusual way.

She plastered a poster with her own face floating above the words, “Stop Telling Women to Smile” on a vacant storefront here, across from a federal courthouse.

Then Ms. Fazlalizadeh and her helpers brushed on two dozen more posters she had created. Images of young faces stared back with wary, defiant and no-nonsense gazes above statements such as “My Outfit Is Not an Invitation,” or “Women Do Not Owe You Their Time or Conversation.”

The words came from Ms. Fazlalizadeh’s interviews with women about “catcalling,” a form of public harassment by men who feel free to comment on their bodies and demeanor. Women around the country have begun to speak out publicly, in blogs, public writing projects and on the websites of anti-harassment groups like Stop Street Harassment and Hollaback!, which document and research the problem. Remember the episode where Theo was diagnosed with dyslexia? After he came home, all Theo had to say was, "Great news, I'm not stupid" while grinning from ear-to-ear. Did his parents ever once apologize for any of the things they said to him? No. Their total insensitivity just made things worse.

After working with her, Richard Burton hated Lucille Ball

From his soon-to-published diaries:

“She is a monster of staggering charmlessness and monumental lack of humour …. I am coldly sarcastic with her to the point of outright contempt but she hears only what she wants to hear ….

She is a tired old woman and lives entirely on that weekly show which she has been doing and successfully doing for 19 years. Nineteen solid years of double-takes and pratfalls and desperate upstaging and cutting out other people’s laughs if she can, nervously watching the ‘ratings’ as she does so …

I loathe her today but now I also pity her. I make a point of never seeing her again …. Milady Ball can thank her lucky stars that I am not drinking. There is a chance that if I had I might have killed her.

Jack Benny, the most amiable man in the world, and one of the truly great comedians of our time, says that in 4 days she reduced his life expectancy by 10 years.”

Why do straight girls fall for gay men?

I got an emai from a girl I've been friends with for like 15 years (since we were kids.) She goes into great detail about my sexual apathy towards her and how she is tired of waiting for me to show interest....

It is so odd since she probably knew I was gay before I did and I never dated any woman ever!

She really thought I'd change?!? WTF? (I think this may be stemming from the fact that we graduated from college last May and her best friend is engaged so...I guess I am supposed to step up.)

Things in movies or TV shows that scared you

I used to be afraid of the MGM lion when I was a kid. The upside of that was that it made the flying monkeys in The Wizard of Oz seem less scary.

When I got older, I talked to people who said they used to be afraid of certain images in movies. One that really scared people was the Screen Gems logo from the 1960s. They took that off every show that had it long before I was born, so it's not scary to me. I actually kind of like it.

★ Man Kills Best Friend, Then Cuts Off His Penis...And Feeds It To His Dog

Unless you're very very sure, keep your hands to yourself in crime-happy Mexico!

Mario Alberto Lizalde Reyes said he and pal Mario Hernandez Banda were drunk and walking Reyes' dog when Banda tried to touch him 'in a sexual way.' Reyes said he then shot Banda and cut off his genitals, which he eventually gave to his dog. He is facing life in prison for Banda's death.

A drunk who shot his best pal in the head before chopping off his penis and feeding it to his dog was so overcome with guilt he handed himself in to police as soon as he sobered up.

Drunk Mario Alberto Lizalde Reyes, 25, had been walking his dog with lifelong friend Mario Hernandez Banda, 24, when the two men started arguing. Reyes said that Banda had tried to touch him "in a sexual way" in the neighborhood of Parajes de San Isidro, in the city of Ciudad Juarez, in the north-central Mexican state of Chihuahua.

"We were both drunk and he tried touching me in a sexual way," Reyes said in a televised confession.

Tory MP "Murdered" 12 Year Old Boy in a Sex Orgy

Damn, the Brits know how to put on a sex scandal. if they're not strangling young boys while getting their jollies, they're choking themselves with oranges while masturbating or locking themselves in suitcases to get a sexual high.

"A Conservative MP murdered a young boy during a depraved sex party in the 1980s, an alleged victim of the Westminster paedophile scandal has claimed.

The 12-year-old boy, who was being abused by a group of men, was strangled by the politician at a luxury townhouse in front of other victims, it has been alleged.

On another occasion, the victim claims a young boy, who was around ten-years-old, was deliberately run down and killed by a car being driven by one of his abusers.

The alleged murders are among three that are now being investigated by the Metropolitan Police as part of a major probe into claims that a powerful paedophile ring with links to Westminster was operating in Britain in the 1970s and 1980s.

In 'Straight White Men,' A Play Explores The Reality Of Privilege

The straight white men of Straight White Men aren't what you might expect. Near the beginning of the new off-Broadway play, two adult brothers play a homemade, family board game, refashioned out of an old Monopoly set. Because the family is liberal and progressive, it's called "Privilege." It makes fun of their own straight-white-male privilege.

"Ah, 'excuses' card!" one of the brothers exclaims. The other reads it aloud. "What I just said wasn't racist/sexist/homophobic because I was joking," he deadpans. "Pay $50 to an LGBT organization."

The playwright, 40-year-old Young Jean Lee, is arguably one of the hottest playwrights in America right now. Her work revels in subverting stereotypes. With Straight White Men, Lee was interested in exploring a problem: What do you do when you've got privilege — and you don't want to abuse it? Lee, who is Korean-American, wanted to create straight white men on stage who think about these things.

"I know they're out there," she says. "I mean, I know them personally. M... [more]

Grace Jones: "Lady Gaga needs ME, I don't need her"

It seems Grace is getting fed up with all the Lady Gaga comparisons. BTW, girl looks FIERCE in this picture!

The only time she gets irritated by these personal questions is when we get on to Lady Gaga, who wants to perform with Jones. 'It keeps coming. I don't collaborate. You're born alone, you die alone, you get on stage alone. I'm better as a loner. You can collaborate in a film but to collaborate musically is something I don't do very often. I collaborated with Pavarotti because I love him and I could stretch myself and do opera. It's going to add another thing to me. Lady Gaga isn't going to do anything for me; it'll do everything for her. I'm not there to validate anyone; validate yourself.' She is getting worked up now. Am I entering Russell Harty territory? No – she drops into her booming laugh again, puncturing her irritation with self-mockery.

Grace Jones does everything you expect of a pampered star. Our interview is scheduled for 9pm on Saturday. Then it's put back to 9pm the following Tuesday. Bill Cosby, serial rapist

He used date rape drugs to sexually assault at least 13 women from the 1970s until 2005. Four of them went on record. Here's one of the victims, a woman named Barbara Bowman, who was interviewed by People magazine in 2005:

It was in a hotel in Reno, claims Bowman, that Cosby assaulted her one night in 1986. "He took my hand and his hand over it, and he masturbated with his hand over my hand," says Bowman, who, although terrified, kept quiet about the incident and continued as Cosby's protégé because, she says, "Who's gonna believe this? He was a powerful man. He was like the president." Before long she was alone with Cosby again in his Manhattan townhouse; she was given a glass of red wine, and "the next thing I know, I'm sick and I'm nauseous and I'm delusional and I'm limp and ... I can't think straight.... And I just came to, and I'm wearing a [men's] T-shirt that wasn't mine, and he was in a white robe."

A month or two later, she was in Atlantic City and says she was given another glass of red... [more]

The thing about Dylan Farrow's open letter accusing her father, Woody Allen, of sexual abuse is: There was not much really new about it. It was new that Dylan Farrow herself was signing her name to the accusations, but Vanity Fair had covered the case, in grim detail, more than two decades ago.

Bodybuilding and Homophobia: Why Can't These Bodybuilders Admit That They're Gay?

The authors investigated the role of homosexual arousal in exclusively heterosexual men who admitted negative affect toward homosexual individuals. Participants consisted of a group of homophobic men (n = 35) and a group of nonhomophobic men (n = 29); they were assigned to groups on the basis of their scores on the Index of Homophobia (W. W. Hudson & W. A. Ricketts, 1980). The men were exposed to sexually explicit erotic stimuli consisting of heterosexual, male homosexual, and lesbian videotapes, and changes in penile circumference were monitored. They also completed an Aggression Questionnaire (A. H. Buss & M. Perry, 1992). Both groups exhibited increases in penile circumference to the heterosexual and female homosexual videos. Only the homophobic men showed an increase in penile erection to male homosexual stimuli. The groups did not differ in aggression. Homophobia is apparently associated with homosexual arousal that the homophobic individual is either unaware of or denies.

★ Republican Senators kill bill aimed at ending NSA's mass phone surveillance

Back in May, the US government began to process a bill aimed at reining in the NSA's powers of surveillance -- if Google, Apple and Microsoft are sending group letters, you know it's an important bill. However, it's been left on Capitol Hill, rejected by the Senate. It failed a procedural vote, after senior Republicans said it would affect efforts to defend the country from enemies. It fell short of the 60 votes needed, gathering 58 to 42 votes. It's now unlikely to become law, as Republicans (who made up most of the opposition), will hold a majority in the Senate in the new year.

So yeah, thanks to all you non-voter assholes.

★ Louis Tomlinson blasts "laughable" reports claiming he supported Tim Cook with rainbow Apple t-shirt

One Direction star Louis Tomlinson has blasted reports claiming he showed support for Apple’s newly-out CEO Tim Cook.

The singer was spotted this weekend wearing a t-shirt with the company’s old rainbow logo.

A reporter in the Independent – along with several other publications – suggested the act was symbolic following Tim Cook’s decision to come out as gay earlier this month.

On Monday, Tomlinson took to Twitter, posting a message to the reporter Jenn Selby:

> @JennSelby The fact that you work for such a 'credible' paper and you would talk such rubbish is laughable. I am in fact straight.

> @JennSelby Google 'original apple logo' and you will see the one printed on my shirt that you reported on. Trying to look for a promotion ?

> Fucking ridiculous I even have to tweet that shit !

It comes after his bandmate Harry Styles joked about being bisexual, claiming that being female was "not that important" in terms of who he wants to date.

Fans of the band have since formed the group... [more]

Worst child actor ever

I nominate Larry Matthews from "The Dick Van Dyke Show." Absolutely the most annoying kid ever on TV. He alternately shouted or whined his lines. Thankfully, the show never lost focus and kept him mostly off-screen.

The Olsen twins on "Full House" were a close second, though.

Janet Jackson Plastic Surgery Shocker!

Two years after marrying a Qatari billionaire and dropping out of sight, Janet Jackson has re-emerged with an almost unrecognizable face!

"She seems to have had every procedure possible," says plastic surgeon Dr. Stephen Ronan who has not treated Janet.

"The "Control" singer, 48, popped up at the Vogue Fashion Experience in Dubai Oct. 31 after not being seen since May.

And a Jackson family insider confirmed Janet has "had a lot of work done."

"Analyzing these pictures, I can say she had a mini facelift that tightened her jawline," said Dr. Yoel S. Shahar, a cosmetic surgeon who hasn't treated the singer.

★ Agents of SHIELD is totally setting up A2:AoU and Inhumans

This is speculation, but the tie in with Cap2 that nearly killed the first season gives a precedent.

SPOILERS FOR 18 Sept 2014

The Obleisk is a Terrigen Crystal. The people that can touch it are humans with Inhuman DNA. Jesus, this episode was full of creepy. Anyway, this allows them to explain Skye and her dad- she's half Inhuman, and thus A Special White Girl.

Holy shit, this may be disproven by the end of the episode. Kyle McLachlan is crazy wonderful.

Anyway, the "City" that Coulson saw, or was compelled to seek by the Kree DNA, is Attilan, the futuristic home city of the Inhumans. Recent comic lore explores the existence of "miscegenation" wherein humans and Inhumans interbred, and so some people don't know they're part alien.

Shit, they really amped it to 26 tonight. Ward, fratricide, matricide and patricide!

And Skye is That Baby. She is The Chosen partially White Girl, and this show has become, strangely, more interesting as a result.

★ Senate Vote On Keystone Comes Down To One Vote

Democratic Sen. Mary Landrieu is in the political fight of her life at home in Louisiana, but her fate could be determined by a vote back in Washington. At least that was her plan in pushing a controversial vote to approve construction of the Keystone XL pipeline Tuesday evening.

That vote now hangs on the narrowest of margins, with Landrieu needing just one more Democrat to rally to her side. But so far, at least, she hasn't been able to lock down a final vote to get past the 60-vote threshold needed to overcome President Obama’s expected filibuster.

The pro-Keystone camp, which includes all 45 Republicans and 14 Democrats thus far, seems to be stuck at 59 votes, still needing one more Democrat to come on board. Most have already said publicly which way they’ll vote, making the path to 60 unclear.

Two more Democrats came out against the vote Tuesday morning. Spokespeople for Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin and Florida Sen. Bill Nelson told msnbc they would be voting no. Sens. Chuck Schumer (D-NY), Jay Rockefeller... [more]

Paula Yates, Michael Hutchence, and Bob Geldof

The epitome of white trash! Holy fuck!

I've been reading about this lot.

We all know that Yates and Geldof were married. She was a major drug addict, even attempted to take her life. She then shacks up with Hutchence, has a kid, and we know what happened to him -- "suicide" (??) She says later that she believes that he could have killed himself with a noose while jerking off. This is the opposite story she gave to investigators. I'm sure that the authorities and coroner would have been able to tell if this was the case. Many say that she had threatened Hutchence to marry her or she was taking his kid away. Apparently, she pulled this same stunt the day he was found dead. Some even think he was murdered because of the way he was found.

Hutchence died in 1997. Yates died of a heroin overdose in 2000, leaving behind a bunch of kids, including the one she had with Hutchence. More about Paula: she found out that the person she thought was her father, wasn't. It was some game show host.

★ Jennifer Aniston ends feud with Brad and Angelina

Jennifer Aniston has disclosed that she no longer holds a grudge against her ex-husband Brad Pitt and his new wife, Angelina Jolie.

The actress said “people can do unforgivable things but you have to let it go.” Aniston’s comments appear to be an attempt to be draw a line under one of Hollywood’s most talked-about feuds after nearly a decade.

She told Harper’s Bazaar: “I think it’s extremely important to forgive. Otherwise it just builds up like toxic waste. There’s nothing worse than holding a grudge.”

Aniston’s marriage to Pitt ended in 2005, after the actor met Jolie on the set of Mr and Mrs Smith. The couple have since said they fell in love during filming.

Jolie, 39, and Pitt, 50, who now have six children together, married in the south of France in August.

In the interview Aniston, 45, said: “Listen, people can do unforgivable things, but you have to let it go and say, ‘Look, we’re all human beings. We make mistakes’.

Enquirer: Betty White leaving "Hot in Cleveland"

> The 92-year-old actress is telling pals this will likely be her last season on the TV Land sitcom “Hot in Cleveland,” sources said. “The show already makes special accommodations for Betty, but it’s become too much for her,” a friend told The ENQUIRER. “She’s admitted she felt dizzy a few times after working under the hot TV lights. At first, she thought it might be a bug. But when it happened a second, then a third time, she knew she had a problem,” the source revealed. "She admits she’s bitten off more than she can chew. She just can’t hold up under the workload any longer.”

> Betty has told her “Hot in Cleveland” co-stars– Valerie Bertinelli, Jane Leeves and Wendie Malick – she plans to quit after this season, a friend added. “They told Betty that they’re afraid that if she retires, she’d slow down too much.” But Betty laughed and said, ‘Slow down? I’m almost at a crawl now!’”

Flexible Spending Accounts

It's the time of year for those who are employed and have access to a Flexible Spending Account (FSA) to decide how much money to set aside for the following year.

It used to be that you picked an amount to be deducted from your paycheck over the course of the year, and contributed into an FSA account. These contributions are not subject to income tax. You then withdraw from the FSA to cover out-of-pocket healthcare expenses. At the end if the year, if you haven't exhausted the account, you forfeit whatever money is in the FSA. Some people make a point of getting prescription eyeglasses in December, to use-up any remaining FSA balance.

What's new is that your employer may now chooses to allow employees to carry-over some of your funds into the new year, so they are not forfeited at year end. Ask your employer.

★ Zachary Quinto Argues That The LGBT Community Has Become Lazy, Advises Caution Around PrEP Use

The shit has hit the fan over his comments...

Zachary Quinto is making headlines after arguing that "there's a tremendous sense of complacency" in the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) community.

“AIDS has lost the edge of horror it possessed when it swept through the world in the ’80s," the "Star Trek" actor, who came out as gay in 2011, told Out magazine in its annual OUT 100 issue, where he is named Artist of the Year. "Today’s generation sees it more as something to live with and something to be much less fearful of. And that comes with a sense of, dare I say, laziness.”

The 37-year-old star, who nabbed an Emmy Award nomination for his turn in "American Horror Story: Asylum" and won raves for his role in "The Glass Menagerie" on Broadway, also urged caution when it came to use of the HIV/AIDS prevention drug Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis, or PrEP.

“We need to be really vigilant and open about the fact that these drugs are not to be taken to increase our ability to have recreational sex,” he... [more]

Sock Designer Rob Kardashian Is Now a Onesie

According to photos from the lookbook, the new collection will include sweat pants, cotton t-shirts, and adult-sized onesies. Because, like, when it comes to lounging, Rob is totally an expert, right?

Photos:

Sock Designer Rob Kardashian Is Now a Onesie Designer

Kim Kardashian once tried to motivate her brother, Rob Kardashian, by telling him to 'fix the problem' that's happening in his life. Well, apparently the solution to that was a collection of clothes made for hanging out around the house. The sock designer got his butt off of that couch and designed a line of loungewear made to be worn while sitting

I haven't flown in 32 years. I'm a mess with lots of questions.

I weigh 280 pounds. Will I fit in the seat (economy) or will the DLer next to me be pissed?

I bought my ticket using my first and last names, but my driver's license lists my first, middle, and last names. The names on your ticket and license must match. Is this ok?

New Dem Poll: Public Has ‘Pulled Back’ From Dems On The Economy

Disturbing news for Democrats:

A new poll has some disturbing news for Democrats: the country defers to Republicans rather than Democrats when it comes to the economy.

That finding is according to a new Economic Media Project study conducted by Greenberg Quinlan Rosner Research on behalf of the Democratic-leaning Democracy Corps. The research said that, despite Democrats having a 5-point partisan identification advantage over Republicans, more people (43 percent to 38 percent) think Republicans have a better handle on the economy than Democrats. That’s “a 10 point deficit based on the presumptive partisan orientation,” the memo from the study said.

“The public really has pulled back from Democrats on the economy,” the memo said.

The study’s findings went on to say that conservatives don’t dominate the issue but liberals are still trailing them.

“The progressive-liberal economic approach centered on creating full employment, raising in-comes at every level, and public investment stands only at parity... [more]

Teenager gives BIRTH in Asda toilet as checkout worker becomes emergency midwife

A teenager came out of her local supermarket with a brand new BABY after going into labour in the store's toilets.

Rebecca Groves, 19, had just walked into an Asda near her home in Walton, Liverpool, with her friend when her waters broke.

Amazingly a self-service checkout assistant was forced to turn midwife to help deliver the tot after stumbling across the young women in the baby changing rooms.

Asda worker Philly McCabe was doing a routine check when she discovered Rebecca in some distress at around 1.30am on November 1.

The pregnant teen called for an ambulance and Philly soon found herself checking the progress of the delivery for the 999 operator after the phone was given to her.

According to the Liverpool Echo, baby Joel was delivered before ambulance workers could arrive at around 2am, with Philly providing support to Rebecca throughout the birth.

Today the pair were reunited back at the store, with Philly getting the chance to meet little Joel for the first time since his unexpected birth... [more]

Thanksgiving Dinner 2014

As a tribute to the 2013 thread on the same subject, let's pretend that we are at our various Thanksgiving destinations.

I'll start:

I'm the nephew whose male partner always says, like clockwork, "That's your second martini. Don't forget that we have a two-hour drive back home."

However, he's a teetotaler in general , always insists on driving us EVERYWHERE during the entire year anyway, and knows very well that I need a few cocktails on Thanksgiving to deal with my crazy aunt and uncle and their spoiled, narcissistic grown-up children, my cousins.

Those same cousins never reach out to me during the rest of the year, always have excuses when I call them to suggest meeting up for dinner half-way, but always say at Thanksgiving, "We don't see each other often enough. We'll have to get together soon."

I only show up every year because my sweet mother would be hurt if I didn't.

Couples can get divorced, and companies can break up

So why is it considered treason if a state wants to secede from the US? I mean, think about it: forever is a LONG time. Things change. In fact, the only constant in life is change. So why are we so hell-bent on keeping states from seceding?

Acclaimed actors that annoy the hell out of you

Peter Sellers - the only thing I ever liked him in was Being There, probably because it was one of the few movies where he didn't play a retarded buffoon

Dustin Hoffman - he was in some masterpieces between The Graduate and Tootsie but that "angry little Jew guy" routine he's been doing for the last 30 years has become a little boring to watch (and Alan Arkin is better at playing those characters anyway)

Loretta Young - enjoyable in those filthy pre-code movies but insufferable in pretty much everything after that

Denzel Washington - plays the same black tough guy in every movie and takes himself way too seriosuly

Aaliyah biopic: Lifetime releases first teaser of Alexandra Shipp as late R&B star

The brief clip was posted to the network's Facebook page, and features the 23-year-old actress dancing while dressed in the R&B star's signature look.

Lifetime has released the first teaser for its highly anticipated movie, "Aaliyah: The Princess of R&B."

The 16-second clip, which was posted on the network’s Facebook page Friday, features Alexandra Shipp dancing while dressed in the late R&B star's signature look of crop top and baggy pants.

Shipp, 23, took over the role after Zendaya Coleman dropped out earlier this summer. The Disney Channel star said she left the project because she didn’t feel “morally okay” about portraying Aaliyah since the singer's family didn’t approve of the film.

Jomo Hankerson, Aaliyah’s cousin and president of her label, Blackground Records, told the Daily News in June that they felt the star deserved a more high-profile vehicle with “A-list actors (and) A-list talent that can breathe life into what we think is a phenomenal story.”

He came out to his mother first. She is a fairly open-minded person and was cool about it. Then he came out to his father… and the father was NOT cool with it! In fact, he was pretty much of a macho jerk about the whole thing.

The whole experience of having his father reject him was crushing for the boy and the two practically stopped speaking after that. Do you remember when the son started using his mother's last name? What's the protocol for royalty kissing hands?

Typically male sovereigns will kiss the hand of foreign sovereign Queens or consorts. Within the Windsor family, Prince Charles kisses the Queen's hand, though none of the other males do it. Not her other sons, nor her grandsons.

Perhaps you have to have arches in your crown, as the prince of Wales does, to be able to do it?

I believe I saw Princess Elizabeth kiss the queen of Belgium's hand when her father welcomed them in the 40s.

Also, I found it adorable on an old video where King George VI kissed his mother's hand after saluting her. Gave me warm fuzzy feelings.

Can anyone clarify? I'll bump with some royalty photos in the meantime. TIA!

This compilation of live music and performances comes out Monday.

My next door neighbor was Whitney Houston's assistant for over two decades and gave me a copy of this cd /DVD tonight. Just going through it, my heart really broke for Whitney and her tragic story. My heart also broke remembering a time in the music industry when a great voice could move us all. Will there ever be a time again when a great voice, a great performance will move us again? Would we allow it?

★ Obamacare Insurance Exchange Open now until Feb 15, 2015!

If you are uninsured or just want to change insurance, the Obamacare insurance exchange is now open until February 15, 2015.

Go to www.healthcare.gov. It will send you to your state's exchange if the state created its own.

Comparing plans, you will soon discover that choosing insurance from among many can be a frustrating process.

There are monthly premiums, deductibles, co-pays, co-insurance, specific drugs covered, specific doctors in plan, etc., to consider.

The best way to choose a plan is to focus on the one thing that is most important to you. Do you have to have a specific doctor? Do you want a low premium? Once you focus on that one important thing, you can eliminate the non-contenders. Then, cut further from there.

Choose plans based upon how high a deductible you are willing to accept. Bronze, Silver, Gold, and Platinum are the same plans but with differing deductibles. If you're older with many medical problems, choose one with a lower deductible (Platinum, for example). If you are... [more]

What your surname says about your life chances

Social status in England is even more strongly inherited than height, according to a new study by economists from the University of California and the London School of Economics.

‘Surnames and Social Mobility in England, 1170–2012’ found that if your ancestors descended from the upper classes in England in 1066, you are more likely to be upper class today - almost 1,000 years on.

In the study, published in the journal Human Nature, researchers looked at the Oxbridge attendance records of people with rare English surnames as well as probate records and records of rich property owners to track social mobility from 1170-2012. The rare family names included Atthill, Bunduck, Balfour, Bramston, Cheslyn, and Conyngham.

As well as the social standing/height finding, they discovered that social mobility in England in 2012 is not that much greater than it was in pre-industrial times.

“The relative constancy of the intergenerational correlation of underlying social status across very different social environmen... [more]

"Justified" on FX

I guess I'm late to the party. I'd always heard good things about this show, and I like Elmore Leonard, so this week I sat down and watched the entire first season on Amazon Prime streaming. I must say I enjoyed it. It was not at all what I expected, however. I thought it would be all about catching moonshiners in the woods, but there was hardly anything about that-- and one episode was even set in California.

I find it odd that they based it on a short story--did the story just provide the basic characters? It took me a while to figure out the Crowders, since so many of them had similar names: Bo, Bowman, Boyd.

I'm ready for Seasons 2, 3, and 4. What am I in for? (No spoilers, please!)

Take It In: 'Vape' Is The Oxford Dictionaries Word Of The Year

The growing popularity of electronic cigarettes has now sparked the notice of the estimable Oxford Dictionaries, which has chosen "vape" as the word of the year for 2014. The word can be a noun or a verb; it beat out contenders such as "bae" and "normcore."

Noting that e-cigarettes have come a long way since the early 1980s, when the "vape" was first breathed into life, the folks at Oxford Dictionaries say it took awhile for the new market, and the new word, to mature.

"A gap emerged in the lexicon, as a word was needed to describe this activity, and distinguish it from 'smoking,' " according to the dictionary's announcement. "The word vape arose to fill this gap, and it has proliferated along with the habit."

In case you've never frequented a vape shop, the word can apply both to breathing an e-cigarette's vapor and to an e-cigarette device.

"I particularly love watching a word like 'vape' create linguistic knock-on effects, like hearing the word 'tobacco' now used to qualify 'cigarette,' " says Casp... [more]

Dear Dr. Laura,

'Breaking Bad' gets animated and Disney-fied in online short

"Breaking Bad" ended its run in 2013, but apparently, a lot of us aren't ready to let it go.

How else to explain the popularity of "Do You Want to Build a Meth Lab?," a musical version of the AMC drama hit sung in the style of a song from Disney's 2013 hit, "Frozen."

No, not "Let it Go" -- the other song you've had stuck in your head: "Do You Want to Build a Snowman?"

This version of the song, created by Amanda Hill, Zack James, Stephen Kardynal, Evan Cloyd and Alex Negrete was posted on the Animeme YouTube channel over the weekend.

In it, Walter White plays the Anna role while Jesse Pinkman plays the hidden and tortured Elsa part, minimal singing and a lot of emoting.

Be warned, for anyone not completely finished with "Breaking Bad," there are a few spoilers. But people who haven't seen "Frozen" should be fine.

It's OK to be skeptical, but it really is hard to resist lyrics such as: "Do you want to build a meth lab? / Or dodge some of Gus' calls? / I think some cook time is overdue / I've start... [more]

Another rape allegation has surfaced against famed comedian and actor, Bill Cosby. This time it is from a familiar face which speculates that there may be some truth to Cosby's sketchy past.

Actress and singer Raven-Symone, who rose to fame with Cosby in the hit television sitcom "The Cosby Show", revealed to the TMZ offices that she too had been raped and drugged years ago following the shows last episode.

There are whispers that Cosby wouldn't allow Raven-Symone in the production of the last season of his show, but abruptly changed his mind. It was never revealed what changed his original intentions.

Bill Cosby Rape Accuser Calls NBC Project "Irresponsible"

"It's time that the networks take a good, hard look at who they're supporting and where the money is coming [from]"

Barbara Bowman, who recently renewed her accusation that Bill Cosby drugged and raped her years ago, is taking her anti-Cosby campaign to NBC. In an interview with The Hollywood Reporter, Bowman says the network is wrong to develop a sitcom in which Cosby would star as the head of a large family.

"I think it's irresponsible to put him back in a position of a patriarchal father, in an authoritative and trusted position," Bowman tells THR. "I'm very disappointed that he would be endorsed in that [type of role] again."

NBC declined to comment on Bowman's statements.

New Study Suggests Genetic Link For Male Homosexuality

Some scientists believe several genes might affect sexual orientation. Researchers who led the new study of nearly 800 gay brothers say their results bolster previous evidence pointing to genes on the X chromosome.

They also found evidence of influence from a gene or genes on a different chromosome. But the study doesn't identify which of hundreds of genes located in either place might be involved.

The new evidence "is not proof but it's a pretty good indication" that genes on the two chromosomes have some influence over sexual orientation, said Dr. Alan Sanders, the lead author.

A STAR IS BORN on TCM right now!

Love this film, especially the first scenes of James Mason (far more beautiful as a young man than I ever remember him) crashing Judy's trio onstage.

But what is it about Judy in this film that ages her so? She's not overweight (or underweight) but must look at least ten years older than she was at the time of filing....which I think was her early 30s.

TCM is showing it with many of the long lost stills and complete dialogue restored.

And I just love Tommy Noonan as her gay pal Danny! Sadly, like Thelma Ritter in All About Eve, he disappears half way through the film.

WHET Noomi Rapace?

She seemed to be the next big thing when she was imported from Sweden and quickly landed the leading role in Prometheus (say what you want about the movie, but she was great in it).

But since then she starred only in some flops and critically panned movies and she's currently filming two movies with Tom Hardy which don't sound very interesting at all.

Do you think there's still hope for her career or is her collapse complete? I feel bad for her because she proved in The Millennium Trilogy that she can really act and I like her unconventional good looks. Is her edgy face too much for mainstream audiences to handle?!

What NOT to do at Hugh Jackman's new Broadway show

The River, currently playing on Broadway and starring Hugh Jackman, is a hushed, intimate drama…and audience members have been acting like pigs. Masses of them are clearly there to see the hunky action star, not savor the ambiguities and delicate silences in Jez Butterworth's unnerving mediation on nature, love and relationships. So thunderstruck are they to be in a theater with the godlike Jackman, they forget to turn off their phones. Or worse, they snap pictures. At the press night I attended, some woman lacking a filter filled in the final, quiet moments of the play with an audible, "Holy shit!" Nice way to ruin a final tableau.

How bad has it gotten? There's a note inserted in the program, begging people to turn their damn phones off, signed by the actors. Now understudy Kerry Warren also takes the stage and reminds the audience to silence its frigging devices. "Before we had the onstage announcement, despite the note from the actors, we had constant interruptions from phones, texts and flashing lights... [more]

★ Governor Declares State Of Emergency Ahead Of Ferguson Grand Jury Decision

Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon (D) declared a state of emergency Monday, preempting a grand jury decision in the Ferguson shooting of Michael Brown that is expected to be delivered any day.

The order establishes that the St. Louis County police will be in charge of law enforcement in Ferguson in response to any unrest. It will work in coordination with the Missouri State Highway Patrol and the St. Louis city police. The order lasts for 30 days.

Nixon also issued an executive order activating the Missouri National Guard to assist local law enforcement.

The St. Louis County grand jury that has been investigating Brown's shooting by Ferguson police officer Darren Wilson is expected to announce its decision whether to indict Wilson in the coming days.

Explain something to me about gay Instagrammers

There's this guy - gay, in NYC, great body, good job (all of which he's publicly disclosed), I'd guess in his thirties - who posts endless endless endless pictures of himself on Instagram... usually shirtless, majority in his elevator on the way to work out. He's obviously in a relationship and quite sweet on the guy.

I know it's easy to just write off as narcissism - maybe it is - but I am mystified by it. Why does this guy, who has a great life on spec, post endless selfies? Why do you do it, if you do? Is it vanity? Insecurity? Cluelessness? I would have though beyond thirty you'd be moving away from 'look at me! look at me!'

I'm 40... so I'm well past the social media generation. But I don't get it and I am curious for some theories.

Then he talked about his body hair. About his chest, he said, "I keep it nice and natural." Seacrest asked him if he manscapes, and he said, "Sometimes. I don't do everything."

He also talked about his next sex scene on Kingdom, saying he wore a "sock basically."

Just not interested in life

Anyone else feel this way? I feel like I've experienced everything life has to offer, and it's always a struggle. The good things are never good enough, they don't last long, and they're always outnumbered by the bad things.

I'm just...not interested. I'd like to leave, but there's no fool-proof way out that isn't painful. I don't know what I'll do. I'm seeing a therapist, but I haven't brought this up because I don't seem to feel quite this way all the time, and never during our sessions. But now I am. He even said in a recent session that "being happy" (which I mentioned as my goal) as not always being possible, but that it is possible to be less miserable. And I thought "What the hell is the point?"

I mean, people don't ask to be born. If I'd been given a preview before birth and been asked if I wanted to born, I honestly think I would've said "No thanks."

The Tiniest Thanksgiving

Mr. Bumbleboo of the Willow house down the lane was looking forward to the big Thanksgiving that he would be having. It was his tradition every year! He invited all his friends, and they would be coming from far away.

It's not like it would be easy. Some of his friends had issues with traveling. Goosey Goose almost crash landed in the sunflower meadow when Mr. Blumby the Possum was a bit too large for her to fly him. Margie mouse was a bit large for a mouse, but she had arrived with her attendant racoons pulling her in her fat sling across the grassy clearing. Thank heavens it just rained and it made the grass slick and smooth that year.

So this year, he was especially pleased as he saw a way to make sure those troublemakers Carl and Rennie the weasels where not there. He invited them to just dessert, and not the main meal. He knew they would not come just for dessert, but stay away for the entire meal. No awkward conversations this year; none will be asking about the burrow they share.

Yes indeedy, he ... [more]

HBO In Talks with Lisa Kudrow to Bring 'The Comeback' Back for Season Two

Could life imitate art yet again, or -- more specifically -- could a title come true? Deadline Hollywood reports HBO is in talks with Lisa Kudrow and director Michael Patrick King to bring "The Comeback" back, the duo's comedy from 2005 that's become a cult classic. Though it only lasted one, 13-episode season, "The Comeback" earned respect from most critics and has developed quite the following since it went off the air.

Recent successful resurrections have given new life to many TV shows with rumors constantly swirling of comebacks, "Arrested Develpment" being the most notable example. This makes the news of the Kudrow comedy's possible return even more apt. "The Comeback" was very much ahead of its time, being a single camera reality show spoof. Relevancy shouldn't be an issue, even almost a decade after its original airing. Valerie Cherish still has plenty to teach us.

On March 19, Kudrow retweeted a Slate story suggesting "The Comeback" deserves another season. It even went so far as to suggest HBO s... [more]

★ Is WABC's Bill Evans the WORST weatherman in the U.S.?

Does anyone here ever see this guy?

He's on in the mornings here in New York, he dresses and acts like a sketchy used car salesman. He seems to think he's adorably funny, constantly snarks and then looks directly into the camera, he dresses like a Jersey mafia boss and does this weird thing where he bares his teeth when trying to smile. If you've seen him, you know what I'm talking about. It's incredibly weird.

He also speaks in a rapid-fire way, like an auctioneer.

Worst of all, the man can NOT forecast the weather. Every single week, without fail, he'll predict a "glorious weekend" or talk about how we'll have sun and "MAYBE a few clouds" in the coming weekend.. And every weekend he predicts this, we have clouds and rain 24/7. He seems terrified of actually reporting on what the actual weather for the day will be and fills his weather report with a lot of bullshit jokes and graphics but never just a straight weather forecast for the day.

We generally suffer him each morning as we're both getting re... [more]

Following a week in which a chapter of Ku Klux Klan threatened to use “lethal force” against Ferguson protesters, the hacker collective known as Anonymous announced Operation KKK (#OpKKK) designed to harass the white supremacist group.

Court docs released in Philly Bashing Case...Gay-Bashing Victims Were Punched, Called “Faggots” Repeatedly, Court Doc Claims

It has been more than two weeks since two gay men were attacked at 16th and Chancellor streets, and new details are still emerging.

Now that Kathryn Knott, Kevin Harrigan and Philip Williams have been charged with the crime, an affidavit of probable cause describing the incident has been made available by the court.

According to that document, the incident began when "words were exchanged" between the two groups of people, with suspect Kevin Harrigan allegedly calling the victims "faggots" several times before a "heated argument developed." The affidavit also alleges that Knott screamed "faggots" at them and hit one of them in the face.

★ How Republicans Get Americans To Vote Against Their Own Self Interest

The general stigma and opinion of the majority of the American people is that the Republican party and their policies favor the wealthy. If so many people believe that a particular political party has only a small elite in their best interest, why do so many still continue to vote for them? A question needs to be asked, why do working class, low and middle income families, continue to support a party that gives little to no benefit to them?

A New York Times/CBS News poll was released last October and showed that 70% of all Americans believed that the policies of congressional Republicans favored the rich. In addition to the backlash towards congressional Republicans, two-thirds of Americans actually disapprove of continuing tax cuts for corporations and millionaires. President Obama's recent proposal, the "Buffett Rule", which would place a minimum tax rate of 30% on millionaires, failed in the Senate with a 51-49 vote. "I am pro-life. Looks like another match made in moviemaking heaven: Canadian actors Jay Baruchel and Alison Pill are engaged.

Baruchel, who has appeared in Million Dollar Baby and Tropic Thunder, popped the question over the holidays, reports ET Canada. But the proposal wasn't exactly like the ones in the movies.

"I was going to give her a ring, and I wasn't sure," Baruchel, 28, says. "I wasn't ready in my heart to say what it was."

But this ring – a 180-year-old Victorian wedding band – wasn't just any ring.

"When I gave it to her, I just said, basically, 'S--- or get off the pot,' " he says. "I said, 'F--- it, will you marry me?' "

Pill, who's appeared in Milk and Scott Pilgrim vs. the World, 25, said yes.

The two plan to wed in September 2012.

'Wonder Woman' Returns On Me-TV

'Wonder Woman' Returns On Me-TV

Posted: 11/30/2013 2:26 pm EST | Updated: 11/30/2013 3:50 pm EST

Lynda Carter's "Wonder Woman" is heading back to your small screen come Christmastime.

Me-TV announced earlier this week that they'll show all 60 episodes of the 1970s series starring Lynda Carter starting Dec. 27 with the pilot. The show will join Me-TV's Saturday night line-up.

"Wonder Woman" ran from 1975 to 1979 and since then, many networks have tried to recreate Carter's iconic portrayal on TV. Few have succeeded. Carter once told ET that Hollywood doesn't understand Wonder Woman's powers. "She is an Amazon Princess and she's got really strong sisterhood values. She's smart, and she just happens to be beautiful and super strong..."

Now, it looks like Me-TV has the right idea by giving life to the classic show without altering a single thing.

Catch the pilot of "Wonder Woman" on Me-TV on Dec. 27 at 8 pm EST.

Temporary 'Vacation Breasts' May Be Here by 2016

Offering women the ability to test-drive breast implants first led plastic surgeon Norman Rowe to invent the InstaBreast—a "lunchtime lift" offering "instant breast enlargement" that lasts 24 hours, as ABC News puts it. Now he's hard at work on "Vacation Breasts." The NYC doctor expects this new augmentation will last two to three weeks, ABC reports, which would work out for a vacation or a special occasion.

Diana Ross Causes Scene At Beverly Hills Restaurant

The diva strikes back.

Never one to shy away from dramatics, former Supremes headliner Diana Ross caused a scene in a Beverly Hills restaurant last Thursday after she was told she would have to wait to be seated.

Ross arrived at upscale Italian eatery La Scala to have lunch with her daughter when she was told the restaurant does not seat anyone without a reservation until the entire party has arrived. Because Ross showed up ahead of her daughter, she was asked to wait. She declined and marched on to a corner booth anyway, according to the New York Post.

The Post reports that management walked over to discuss the restaurant's seating policies with the singer, telling Ross that she would not be served if she didn't wait for her daughter to arrive. Naturally, Ross refused to move and a scene ensued once her daughter did show up, with both women eventually storming out of the restaurant.

“I’m sorry that Ms. Ross had a problem with that and she feels that the rules didn’t apply to her," La Scala owner Gi... [more]

Choir stages singalong on Manchester trams after homophobic attack

Choir stages singalong on Manchester trams after homophobic attack

LGTB choir members joined by counterparts from other local groups to show solidarity with victims of 1 November attack

Helen Pidd, northern editor; Monday 17 November 2014 16.21 EST

A lesbian and gay choir staged a mass singalong on Manchester’s tram network after homophobic thugs attacked two young gay men who were singing songs from the musical Wicked on a night out.

The event – entitled Safe to Sing – started with about 80 singers boarding trams in the city centre on Monday evening to belt out tunes including Somewhere, from West Side Story, and Petula Clark’s Downtown – with the main refrain changed to “Canal Street”, the heart of Manchester’s gay village.

Volunteers gave out rainbow coloured cupcakes to bemused passengers from a box marked “Cake Not Hate” as the driver explained over the PA what was going on.

Manchester Lesbian & Gay Chorus (MLGC) then got off at Piccadilly Gardens, where 25-year-old Jean-Claude Manseau, know... [more]

Charles Manson is Getting Married

The purity of heterosexual love knows no bounds. His blushing bride must be a real catch!

"Mass murderer Charles Manson has gotten a license to marry a 26-year-old woman who visits him in prison.

The marriage license obtained Monday by the Associated Press was issued 7 November for the 80-year-old Manson and Afton Elaine Burton, who left her Midwestern home nine years ago and moved to Corcoran, California, the site of the prison, to be near Manson. She maintains several websites advocating for Manson’s innocence.

The license does not specify a wedding date and indicates the couple has 90 days to get married or they will have to reapply.

Burton, who goes by the name “Star”, told the AP that she and Manson will be married next month.

“Y’all can know that it’s true,” she said. “It’s going to happen.”

“I love him,” she added. “I’m with him. There’s all kinds of things.”

Burton gave an interview a year ago to Rolling Stone magazine in which she said she and Manson planned to marry. But Manson... [more]

Mirka Federer Cunts it Up By Heckling Stan Wawrinka

She sounds perfectly paired with that douche.

"The details of the bust-up between Roger Federer and Stan Wawrinka at the Barclays ATP World Tour Finals on Saturday night became clearer yesterday as well-placed sources attested that the two men found themselves “thrashing out their differences” in the O_2 Arena’s gym after their semi-final.

Furthermore, the common thread in the accounts of a hot-tempered match concerns the role of Federer’s wife, Mirka. Telegraph Sport understands that Mirka’s intense and even provocative support for her husband – which peaked just before Wawrinka served for the match at 5-4 in the third set – caused Wawrinka to complain about her behaviour. In those late stages, Mirka is understood to have challenged Wawrinka directly, accusing him of whingeing. Wawrinka failed to convert four match points – three of them in that critical service game at 5-4 – before Federer finally came through 4-6, 7-5, 7-6 .

When he came into the interview room Wawrinka was asked: “At some point late ... [more]

Adele has turned down the chance to perform on the new Band Aid 30 charity single after rebuffing Bob Geldof's advances.

A number of high profile pop stars and musicians arrived at Sarm Studios in West London yesterday for recording, including Chris Martin, Ed Sheeran, One Direction, Rita Ora and Jessie Ware. Adele, however, was not among them despite Geldof revealing to The Sunday Mirror that he had attempted to contact the singer.

"I got through to someone, not her, but she's not doing anything at all at the moment. It's fine, I understand it's not for everybody and other people support in different ways," said Geldof. People Care Less About Music as They Get Older

Taylor Swift's new album, 1989, has sold over 1.5 million copies so far—and not just to teenage girls. A Time reporter admitted his whole office was upset they couldn't stream the album on Spotify. "Saturday Night Live" suggests a "cure" for adult Swift fans.

Swift may have cross-generational appeal, but there's a difference between how kids and adults respond to music. In a 2013 paper in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, a team of psychologists, led by Arielle Bonneville-Roussy at the University of Cambridge, designed a study to look at how our music-listening habits and attitudes toward music change over the course of our lives.

Other researchers had observed correlations between various personality traits and taste in music: preference for classical music and jazz is positively associated with openness, imagination, liberal values, and verbal ability; preference for "intense" music like heavy metal and punk is correlated with sociability and physical attractiveness.

Preference for "in... [more]

Huge twin study homes in on 'gay genes'

A genetic analysis of 409 pairs of gay twins has provided the strongest evidence yet that gay people are born gay. The study clearly links sexual orientation in men with two regions of the human genome that have been implicated before, one on the X chromosome and one on chromosome 8.

The finding is an important contribution to mounting evidence that being gay is biologically determined rather than a lifestyle choice. In some countries, such as Uganda, being gay is still criminalised, and some religious groups believe that gay people can be "treated" to make them straight.

"It erodes the notion that sexual orientation is a choice," says study leader Alan Sanders of the NorthShore Research Institute in Evanston, Illinois.

"This study knocks another nail into the coffin of the 'chosen lifestyle' theory of homosexuality," says Simon LeVay, the neuroscientist and writer who, in 1991, claimed to have found that a specific brain region, within the hypothalamus, is smaller in gay men. "Yes, we have a choice in ... [more]

Amy Poehler's book - NYT pans it

Amy Poehler’s memoirish book is titled “Yes Please,” as in Bring it on, but its tone is more “No, Really, Make This Stop,” as in Get me out of here.

Composing “Yes Please” was a burden, this gifted comic actress says, that she shouldn’t have shouldered. “I had no business agreeing to write this book,” she declares in a preface, pleading a hectic existence: young sons, new projects, a recent divorce, a new love. What’s it been like to write “Yes Please”? “It has been like hacking away at a freezer with a screwdriver.”Points to Ms. Poehler for honesty. Every writer has occasionally spent time chunking away in the Sub-Zero. She’s wily, too, to lower expectations. The bar has risen on books like hers, those by actresses on sophisticated television comedies.

For this Ms. Poehler can thank her friend and former “Saturday Night Live” cast mate Tina Fey, whose memoir, “Bossypants” (2011), fanned out its charms like Ricky Jay with four packs of red Bee playing cards. She can also thank Lena Dunham, whose recent “N... [more]

Michael Fassbender Wants Everyone To Please Stop Talking About His Big Penis

Swinging gif at link...

Unless you live under an entertainment rock everyone knows that handsome Brit actor Michael Fassbender has a big cock.

In a recent interview with Elle UK Fassbender expressed his annoyance that everyone is so obsessed with his huge root which he showed off in the movie Shame.

I can't start saying, 'Wait a second there is more about the film than my dick; it's one scene and it doesn't go on for very long. It wouldn't be acceptable it would be seen as sexual harassment, people saying [to an actress], 'Your vagina …' You know?

Michael its when we STOP talking about it that there might be a problem. Till then swing low and proud!

Michigan Officials: March Same-Sex Marriages From The State Are "Void"

“[I]t is as if the marriages never existed,” Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette argues.

WASHINGTON — The impact of the shifting court rulings on same-sex couples’ marriage rights was made unambiguously clear by Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette in a Friday night court filing: “[F]rom a legal standpoint,” he wrote of the same-sex couples who got married in the state this March, “it is as if the marriages never existed.”

Should the judge in that case decide now whether Michigan must recognize the marriages entered into by same-sex couples there on March 21 and 22, Schuette argued, the marriages should be found to be void and Michigan should not be ordered to treat the couples as married.

The filing came even as other same-sex couples went to the Supreme Court on Friday — with more filings expected Monday — asking the justices to take up an appeal of the issue and bring nationwide resolution to the questions of whether same-sex couples have a constitutional right to marry and have their marriage... ★ Australian teenager dies on 18th birthday after drinking high-strength spirit

An Australian teenager has died on her 18th birthday after drinking shots of a 95% alcohol strength spirit.

Nicole Bicknell collapsed after quickly drinking several shots of Spirytus Rektyfikowany, a Polish “rectified sprit” two weeks ago.

The teenager rarely drank alcohol and was said to be unaware of the dangers of taking shots of such a potent drink in quick succession.

She had drunk other mixed drinks over the course of the evening, according to her family, who are calling for the spirit to be banned in Australia.

Ms Bicknell is said to have been offered neat shorts of the drink by a male friend.

“I cannot see why alcohol so strong is sold in liquor stores,” the girl’s grandfather Kevin McLean told the Western Australian local newspaper The Sunday Times.

“No one needs to buy alcohol that strong. It should be taken off the shelves so this doesn’t happen to any other family. We want it banned Australia-wide and we would like to see it an offence to sell it.”

Her mother Belinda Bicknell said sh... [more]

London hotel bans pork and alcohol after being taken over by a Middle Eastern businessman

An exclusive hotel has banned alcohol and pork after being taken over by a Middle Eastern businessman who wants to run it ‘in accordance with Sharia law’.

The strict Islamic policy was imposed without warning this week at London’s Bermondsey Square Hotel – where the bar and grill was previously run by Masterchef judge Gregg Wallace.

Staff said the new rules were swiftly implemented on Tuesday on the orders of the new Muslim owner, forcing waiters to tell disgruntled guests that much of the menu was no longer available.

Disrupter of Muslim prayer at National Cathedral: God and Drudge sent me

The woman who disrupted the first ever Muslim prayer service conducted at the National Cathedral claims she was sent to protest the ceremony by God after reading about it on the Drudge Report.

In an interview with World Net Daily, Christine Weick, 50, said she read about the event on Drudge and became enraged, saying, “My blood began to boil as I read the comments of how this is to be such a wonderful event and how religious tolerance can, for the first time, be shown in our nation’s capital.”

Friday’s prayer service was just beginning when Weick stood up and began walking towards the front of the cathedral shouting.

“Jesus Christ died on that cross. He is the reason we are to worship only Him. Jesus Christ is our Lord and Savior,” she said. “We have built …allowed you your mosques in this country. Why don’t you worship in your mosques and leave our churches alone? We are a country founded on Christian principles.”

According to Weick, she expected to get arrested but was instead politely escorted from... [more]

Shawn Mendes is a 'Bieber without the baggage'

> GTA teen's cover of "As Long as You Love Me" on Vine leads to record deal and real world stardom.

Aug 19 2014

A year ago, Shawn Mendes filmed himself singing a tentative acoustic cover of the Justin Bieber song “As Long as You Love Me” and put the results on Vine. He wasn’t expecting much response. “I didn’t really want anything to happen; I just kind of wanted to see what people would think,” says Mendes, 16. “I posted that first Vine and woke up the next morning with 10,000 followers. That was pretty cool.”

Mendes’s Bieber cover went viral and he soon became a popular presence on Vine, a service that allows users to share six-second video clips. He began posting Vines — mostly covers of popular songs — almost every day.

“It just started to pick up in this snowball effect to where I am now, which is insane. Everything has come through Vine,” Mendes says in a recent phone interview. “I went to Toronto one afternoon for this Vine meet-up and there was 2,000 people there cheering my name. That wa... [more]

Someone is using my toilet

I came home tonight and someone had left a nasty in my private bathroom - had to go through my bedroom. No one was there, and no one was supposed to be there.

It was the same last week - Friday as well - but I just slammed the lid and cringed, thinking as I flushed that I must have rushed in the morning. But this time I KNOW it was someone.

There is this guy who does odd-jobs for the super who they call "Cujo" because he has big features and a big mouth and big teeth. He always stares at me when I come on or walk by and he's working in another apartment. I am wondering if it's him. He. Which ever.

Should I sprinkle itching powder? Put up a lock on my bedroom? (They have keys to all the units? Should I report it? Should I ask my neighbors if it's happening in their places? I mean, it's fierce - so passive-aggressive. And huge. Like a Great Dane on cheap dog food. And this is an expensive building, too. I don't like people crapping in my place and leaving a message I do not understand - or want to.

You all misunderstand borderline personality.

Believe it or not, people with this affliction, at their very core, are the inverse of the narcissist. People with BPD start out 'too sensitive', too empathetic. People with borderline personality disorder empathize to the point of pain.

When the highly sensitive person grows up in a very non-validating and/or abusive environment, with a history of trauma, BPD can manifest.

In order for borderline personality to develop, an invalidating environment with and a highly sensitive person MUST BE present.

What is going on in a Borderline Personality Disorder sufferer's mind and how they are acting can be two entirely different things.

To the sufferer, BPD is about deep feelings, feelings often too difficult to express, feelings that are something along the lines of this : \tIf others really get to know me, they will find me rejectable and will not be able to love me; and they will leave me;

\tI need to have complete control of my feelings otherwise things go completely wrong;

George Michael rushed to hospital after collapse

George Michael rushed to hospital after collapse

29th May 2014, 12:56 PM, Scott Roberts

Singer George Michael was rushed to hospital last week after collapsing at home in north London, according to reports.

Last night his agent refused to say what had caused his collapse. She also declined to comment on whether the star was still in hospital.

A statement simply said: “George Michael was in hospital for routine tests.”

The Sun reports two ambulances arrived at his north London home in Highgate at 8am last Thursday.

An Ambulance Service spokesman said: “We were called just before 8am. We sent two ambulance crews and staff treated a man, who was taken to hospital.”

In March, the 50-year-old Wham! star announced he was no longer using cannabis.

Michael received an eight-week prison sentence in 2010 after pleading guilty to driving under the influence of drugs, following an incident where he crashed his car into a photo shop in London.

A year later Michael suffered from life-threatening pneumonia... [more]

Justin Bieber has revealed that he could not live in Britain because he does not like the weather or the food.

However, the 16-year-old pop sensation admitted that he does like British women.

He told Radio 1's Fearne Cotton: "I couldn't live here because the weather is very depressing. But I like the girls! The food I don't like really."

The singer, who is currently in the UK to promote his new album My Worlds Acoustic, went on to say that he is a fan of the English accent and believes that festive songs sound better with one.

He said: "'Rudolph The Red Nose Reindeer' sounds better in an English accent though."

Bieber also confessed that he stayed up until the early hours of this morning to hear the Grammy Awards nominations in the US and was thrilled to find out that he will be competing for 'Best New Artist' and 'Best Pop Album'.

He explained: "I was up until about 5am this morning, straight through. I found out in the middle of the night, at around 3.30am, that I'm nominated for two Grammys.

★ Marquis de Sade: rebel, pervert, rapist...hero?

An exhibition at the Musée d'Orsay has divided public opinion once again on whether the notorious aristocrat answered the great questions of his age – or simply made a case for indefensible violence and cruelty

The Marquis de Sade was many things – a rapist, a paedophile, and an eloquent, literary apologist for sexual cruelty.

To his modern admirers, Donatien Alphonse François, Comte de Sade was also a revolutionary, one of the first writers and thinkers to explore the darkest labyrinths of the human soul. The jury is out on whether Sade was, in the contemporary sense of the word, a "sadist".

In his many guises, including nearly 30 years as a prisoner under three regimes, royal, republican and imperial, the marquis never turned his hand to painting. It seems perverse, therefore, for the Musée d'Orsay in Paris to celebrate his 200th anniversary with an art exhibition.

"Sade – Attaquer le soleil" (Sade – attacking the sun) seeks to prove that Sade's writing, although officially banned in France until th... [more]

★ Brad Taylor And Dylan Meehan, The 'Cutest Couple' This High School Didn't Expect

When 18-year-old Chelsea posted a photo of her classmates Brad Taylor And Dylan Meehan to her Tumblr blog this week, she did not anticipate the incredible response it would receive -- within 24 hours, the entry had been shared almost 100,000 times.

The image was taken from her high school yearbook, and she included this caption:

> "Two of my best friends won Cutest Couple of our senior class. First time in my school history a same sex couple has even been able to run for this category, not to mention winning it. So proud of them, and my school."

No one was more surprised, however, than the couple themselves. In an email to The Huffington Post, Taylor and Meehan shared their reaction to the image -- and relationship -- being shared around the world.

> This whole thing has been a bit surreal for us because we have been raised to believe that love is love. We never realized that our happiness and openness would inspire so many individuals. The support we have received from our family, friends,... [more]

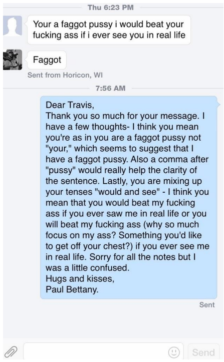
★ Paul Bettany Takes Down Twitter Troll

And in fine Datalounge fashion, uses grammar as his weapon!



Your a faggot pussy i would beat your fucking ass if i ever see you in real life

Faggot

Dear Travis,
Thank you so much for your message. I have a few thoughts- I think you mean you're as in you are a faggot pussy not "your," which seems to suggest that I have a faggot pussy. Also a comma after "pussy" would really help the clarity of the sentence. Lastly, you are mixing up your tenses "would and see" - I think you mean that you would beat my fucking ass if you ever saw me in real life or you will beat my fucking ass (why so much focus on my ass? Something you'd like to get off your chest?) if you ever see me in real life. Sorry for all the notes but I was a little confused.
Hugs and kisses,
Paul Bettany.

Reagan, Bush Also Acted Without Congress To Shield Immigrants From Deportation

Two of the last three Republican presidents — Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush — did the same thing in extending amnesty to family members who were not covered by the last major overhaul of immigration law in 1986.

There was no political explosion then comparable to the one Republicans are threatening now.

College football player Michael Sam comes out, may become first openly gay player in NFL

Coaches at the University of Missouri divided players into small groups at a preseason football practice last year for a team-building exercise. One by one, players were asked to talk about themselves — where they grew up, why they chose Missouri and what others might not know about them.

As Michael Sam, a defensive lineman, began to speak, he balled up a piece of paper in his hands. “I’m gay,” he said. With that, Mr. Sam set himself on a path to become the first publicly gay player in the National Football League.

“I looked in their eyes, and they just started shaking their heads — like, finally, he came out,” Mr. Sam said Sunday in an interview with The New York Times, the first time he spoke publicly about his sexual orientation.

Mr. Sam, a 6-foot-2, 260-pound senior, went on to a stellar season for Missouri, which finished 12-2 and won the Cotton Bowl. He was named a first-team all-American. He was the defensive player of the year in the Southeastern Conference, widely considered the top league in c... [more]

★ Obamacare: Voters, are you stupid?

Washington (CNN) -- Years-old but newly scrutinized videos of MIT economics professor Jonathan Gruber ignited a political firestorm this week because the self-described architect of Obamacare thanks "the stupidity of the American voter" for leading to passage of the president's signature piece of legislation.

With Obamacare open enrollment set to begin over the weekend and the Supreme Court set to weigh in again on the law next year, Republicans pounced, using the videos as additional ammunition in their case that President Barack Obama and his administration misled the American public on Obamacare. But it's been kind of a difficult story line to follow.

Why should old videos of an economics professor matter?

Here's the gist: Gruber called voters stupid, Republicans are calling him the Obamacare architect, and Democrats are calling it all a big misunderstanding.

Still confused? This will help:

Was Gruber the "architect" of Obamacare?

Not exactly. This is a law that was passed by both houses of Con... [more]

★ Should LGBT circumcise the acronym?

Gavin McInnes thinks so. It's a fair and interesting read.

Hey LG, it’s time to drop the BT. It’s also time to drop any other letters that are straggling to join that ever-expanding abbreviation. They’re holding you down.

In recent years, the abbreviation has swollen beyond the already bloated “LGBT” into atrocities such as “LGBTQIAP.” It has become a garbled mess that even some gays are calling “alphabet soup.” Apparently, “Bi” and “Transgendered” became too limiting, so they threw in Q (queer or questioning), I (intersex), A (asexual or allies), and P (polyamorous or pansexual). Bestiality and pedophilia haven’t been allowed past the front gate, but give them time.

The newer, more militant definitions of sexuality are “fluid” and refuse to get stuck in antiquated definitions. The only judging they allow is toward people who accept the gender they are born with. Such people are known to those in the know as “cis scum.”

Here’s the thing, gays and lesbians: We like you. We really do. Even the Pope doe... [more]

★ Los Angeles Question

I've never lived in LA but have a really great job offer that I'm considering.

The office is located in Beverly Hills (is it odd for a business to be located there?), what neighborhood should I live in?

I am a single, 30 year old lesbian. I like Santa Monica because it is closer to the ocean, but is it too far from BH? What about Los Feliz, Silverlake and West Hollywood? I would be renting and price is not a big limitation (nothing over $2,500 per month). Ideally I'd rent in an apartment building unless I can find a nice guest house or bungalow or something like that. I want to be around people.

Thanks in advance.

Men Over 40 Who Color Their Hair...

Why bother? It tends to look laughably bad when guys continue to color their hair, despite the deep wrinkles carved into their face. Maybe it's sexist, but men and women weren't created equal when it comes to pulling off dyed hair. And with guys, the darker the dye-job, the funnier the results.

Why Do Brits Eat The Most Disgusting Food?

Who eats beans for breakfast? The Brits do! They just love beans on toast.

Also, they are completely obsessed with "crisps" (potato chips for us). The will go on and on about how they constantly eat them. Lots of morbidly obese Brits will admit to eating multiple bags of crisps a day. It's so fucking weird. I don't know any morbidly obese American who does that.

As far as candy bars go, Brits are obsessed with Mars bars! Mars bars! Of all the candy bars that's what the go nuts over!

They also eat far more offal than Americans do. It's gross.

Mini Thins

I miss them. One used to be able to purchase them in just about every gas station. They were pharmaceutical strength ephedrine and people took them as speed even though they were meant for asthma. They worked wonders in losing weight as they not only decreased appetite but also sped up your metabolism. Currently, most states have either banned them or restrict the dosage of ephedrine to half or less than what they used to contain. In my state they are illegal. It seems back in the 90s that severs stupid teens, both male and female, would down a bottle and then go out and play sports. They would of course die of massive heart attacks. So there was this huge outcry from parents to ban them. The pills were also a favorite of meth cooks who used them to make crank. Eventually legislation did unfortunately pass. You can't even get them with a prescription in my state.

I really miss them. They literally got me through high school and college.

So ... I assume some of you watched "Broadchurch" on BBCAmerica. Fox is doing a remake as a 10-part "mystery event" this fall. David Tennant is reprising his role from the original (but his character is now American), and Anna Gunn is the female lead.

The Contract Is Up! But Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson's lunatic fandom don't see it quite that way..

So, Sparkle's squiring his new girlfriend, the increasing grumpy looking FKA Twigs, around Europe caused a few problems for the inhabitants of HKNs Haven. How DOES one keep arguing that Stewart-Pattinson are secretly married in the light of the new couple?

Why, it's simple! Twigs is merely a business investment, that Pattinson is helping as a friend. Or he's 'managing' her as 'a tax break'. Or he's provoke hatred against himself and Twigs on twitter to 'deflect hatred from KStew' in the light of her Gitmo wittering.

Problem solved.

And nerves at the Haven have been further calmed by yesterday's shock revelation by Vern that she has a 'Cousin Nephew' in LA who has journalist friends in Robsten's 'inner circle' and - phew! - Cousin Nephew says all is well! Thank goodness for imaginary inbred relatives!

The Rise and Fall of Katharine Hepburn's Fake Accent

When Hollywood turned to talkies, it created a not-quite-British, not-quite-American style of speaking that has all but disappeared.

"Play it, Sam. Play 'As Time Goes By,'" purrs a moon-faced Ingrid Bergman in the now-famous scene from 1942's Casablanca. Staccato t's and accordion-stretched a's lend a musical flavor to Bergman's lilt. "Early" becomes "euh-ly" and "perhaps" unfolds as "peuh-haps.'"

The grandeur and glamor in her voice, though, is a sham.

No, really. That's not a real accent. It's a now-abandoned affectation from the period that saw the rise of matinee idols and Hitchcock's blonde bombshells. Talk like that today and be the butt of jokes (see Frasier). But in the '30s and '40s, there are almost no films in which the characters don't speak with this faux-British elocution—a hybrid of Britain's Received Pronunciation and standard American English as it exists today. It's called Mid-Atlantic English (not to be confused with local accents of the Eastern seaboard), a name that describes a birt... [more]
